Dear Dr. Brush,

phone

Please consider my application for the open Chemistry high school teacher position. I believe I would be an ideal candidate for the job, due to my Chemistry and general sciences experience, as well as history with educating younger children.

I have a passion for teaching and spreading knowledge to the future generations of scientists. I would like to get more people interested in science, get students excited about Chemistry, and be a trustworthy adviser for any students who might need someone to talk to, or be seeking advice. I believe a teacher's job is to do more than just teach.

I have my Bachelor's Degree in Chemistry from Bridgewater State University, and took Secondary Education courses throughout my college career as well. I have received the proper education and training, which has prepared me for taking on my own classroom. These courses include Teaching Literacy in Content Area, Foundations in Sheltered English Immersion, Assessment and Planning, Learning Motivation and Teaching, Introduction to Teaching Secondary Education, and Psychology. These are only the education courses, on top of all of the required Chemistry major classes. I have also spent a lot of time in the classroom, observing a variety of lessons and teachers in action, and seeing different interactions with a diverse population of students.

Sincerely,
